Germans Take Repressive Measures Against Typhus Spread

CONTINUE TO TRANSFER JEWISH COMMUNITIES TO GHETTOES

A demarcation line along the old Polish-German border has been established at which persons coming from the East are examined for lice, a primary typhus carrier.

The small village of Pernik, in Bulgaria, was mentioned by the German Health Ministry as one where typhus has broken out. German press dispatches also reported a number of cases among Bulgarian gypsies.

Other dispatches said the German postal chief in Poland had forbidden the forwarding of packages and letters from Jews. Most of Poland's Jews are confined to the cramped quarters of Nazi-ordained ghettoes in which any sort of hygienic protection is lacking.

Though the German Health Ministry professed the belief that Germany and Western Europe were not threatened by typhus, Danish doctors who met at Copenhagen to discuss the disease noted a sharp increase in the number of persons infested with the germ-carrying lice.

The Nazi authorities in Poland are summoning Jewish doctors, formerly forbidden to treat any but their own co-religionists, to give their services, in view of the enormous numbers of German wounded brought to Warsaw from the Russian front. Another reason for demanding the aid of Jewish doctors is said to be the severe epidemics of typhus and typhoid fever which are spreading all over Nazi-occupied "Ostland."

It is reported that the German Government has proclaimed the whole provinces of Latvia, Lithuania, White Russia, and the Ukraine vast quarantine areas.

[redacted] medical services of which are not so strained as Germany's own. These include hospital units from France, Norway and Denmark.

The Sydsvenska Daghladet, of Malmo, Sweden, reporting that typhus and other diseases are raging in the Baltic States, says that the use of unboiled water is forbidden, and all houses have to be fumigated. All houses in ghettoes are being disinfected and the Jews cleansed.

The German High Commissioner for "Ostland" ordered all medical officers, nurses, and hospital orderlies of the former Latvian, Estonian, and Lithuanian armies, on pain of instant imprisonment, to report at Nazi headquarters at Riga, Talinn, and Kaunas.

The epidemic of spotted typhus raging in parts of Poland, the Baltic States, and White Russia has produced panic among the Nazi invaders. The Nazis accuse the Jews in the ghettoes of having spread the epidemic among the non-Jewish population, and the German troops and some of the Nazi authorities in the Baltic States are even clamouring for the removal of the ghettoes to Russia.

But the truth is that the Nazis have themselves to blame for the epidemic. As one American paper has put it, "Nature is demanding the penalty for the ruthless treatment of an oppressed people." The internment of large numbers of Jews in congested areas under unhygienic conditions, and the starvation rations allotted to the internees, were bound to produce epidemics, and it is unfortunate for the Nazis that whereas they can order Jews not to leave the ghettoes and can shoot those of them who attempt to seek freedom, they cannot command typhus bacilli to remain within ghetto walls, says the London Jewish Chronicle.

But at the same time as they are calling up all Jewish doctors (thus depriving the ghettoes of their services), the Nazis are continuing their policy of extending the ghettoes.

In the Warsaw ghetto, according to one report, there are 300 deaths a day from typhus. There is a shortage of anti-typhus serums and inoculations have had to be [redacted] ability to make arrangements to accommodate further batches of Jews from the Third Reich in the ghetto. When the communal leaders replied that the ghetto was already congested, and that it was impossible to make room for new arrivals, they were told to install underground cellar dorms for about 70,000 persons. It is also reported that a similar arrangement was made in the Lodz ghetto for new arrivals from the Third Reich.

1,500 Refugees To Be Retrained In New Skills

The retraining program of the National Refugee Service will be increased considerably in 1942 in expectation that the country will face a shortage of trained men and will need all available industrial manpower to meet the demands of the national all-out production effort. In 1942, plans are being made to retrain 1,500 refugees as compared with 1,000 individuals who were taught useful skills in 1941.

The National Refugee Service is represented together with the Joint Distribution Committee and the United Palestine Appeal in the nation-wide United Jewish Appeal for Refugee, Overseas Needs and Palestine to provide funds for aid to refugees in the United States, overseas war relief and rehabilitation and upbuilding and defense of the Jewish homeland in Palestine.

Under the retraining program of the National Refugee Service, refugees who have no prospects for earning their livelihood in fields they formerly pursued are retrained for jobs where opportunities are available. Last year, 1,000 individuals were entered in more than 75 retraining courses both in New York and a number of communities throughout the country. Courses in other cities were set up with NRS guidance and often with the agency's financial assistance.

Some of the group courses conducted by the National Refugee Service last year included: accounting and income tax, American methods in architecture, auto body and fender work, baking, dental mechanics, furniture finishing, millinery, quantity cooking, upholstery, waitress training and welding.

Refugees who were sent to private schools by the agency learned such trades as cutting and fitting [redacted] ain, embroidery machine operating, diamond polishing, fashion designing, laboratory technique, Enotyping, machine shop practice, medical assistance, power sewing machine operating, practical nursing, watchmaking and X-ray technique.

Nazis Continue To Deport Jews Eastward

The biggest prison the world has ever seen is one of the Nazis' plans for Jews; that half of world Jewry that the Germans estimate is still under their control will be isolated in Eastern Europe and the creation of a Jewish State, more or less enclosed by barbed wire, is being contemplated according to Berlin dispatches reaching Stockholm, says George Axelsson in the New York Times.

In this State, which will be ruled by Dr. Alfred Rosenberg as part of the gubernatorial functions of his new Ministry for the German-occupied territories of the East, the Jews will be severed from any communication with the rest of the world and left entirely to live and feed with each other.

In this State, as now contemplated, it is said, a special set of laws and decrees would be introduced, intended "strictly to prevent the spread of Jewish influence in other parts of the world."

The Berlin dispatches say these decrees are now in the process of being drawn up in the Department of Jewish Questions of Dr. Rosenberg's Ministry. Berlin reports that the projected Nazi code will "realize the ultimate aim of the Nazi anti-Jewish policy, namely, of ridding Europe of the last Jew."

If eye-witnesses' testimony available of conditions already applying to Jews in the Gouvernement General of Poland may be taken as an indication of this Nazi policy, the destiny in store for Jews under German control would be particularly sombre. The present German intentions, as freely admitted by leading circles in Berlin, is to the following effect:

"Jews must be cut off from the rest of the population and return to their ghettoes. Jewish quarters must be roped off and guarded by sentries. Jews must work only inside their ghettoes."

That is already the case with the Jews of Warsaw, who are left

Laski, Non-Zionist, Scores Colonial Office On Palestine Tactics

RESENTS EVASIONS ON ARMY OFFER

Professor Harold Laski, the famous economist, in an article in "Reynolds News," in which he dealt with Dr. Chaim Weizmann's recent speech on his negotiations with the British Government in regard to the Jewish Army project, strongly attacked the Colonial Office.

"Dr. Weizmann's speech on the treatment of his offer of a Jewish corps made my heart ache," says Professor Laski. "It was not only that he experienced what I fear is typical of the ungracious and delaying tactics of the Colonial Office. It is even more that the right of a persecuted people to fight for their liberty and self-respect does not seem to have been regarded as important by those with whom he negotiated.

"It cannot be often in a great war that men who seek the privileges of dying for Great Britain are shuffled off with evasions and excuses which amount to a fear of irritating the Arabs and to the difficulty which we should face of paying the recognition due to such services after the war.

"I am not, and never have been, a Zionist, and I think those mistaken who believe Palestine the solution of the Jewish problem. But I find myself, as a Jew, profoundly resentful of the pettifogging evasions of the Colonial Office at every turn in the problems of Palestine.

"The real truth is that the officials, both in Jerusalem and here, cannot bear the refusal of the Jew [redacted] there.

"In our handling of Colonial issues we seem only to understand the two categories of 'gentlemen' and 'natives'. In the Colonial Office mind, of course, Jews ought to settle down quietly into the second category and take their orders without discussion.

"There is a Labour Under-Secretary at the Colonial Office. He might sometimes look at Labour's policy on Palestine."

Talmud Translator Is Seventy

HONORED FOR COLOSSAL WORK

"We regard the Talmud Babli in the form in which he has given us it, as the monument of Lazarus Goldschmidt, the distinguished scholar of whom Jew and Gentile are alike indebted, and in saluting him we wish him length of days, joy of all that he has undertaken, and satisfaction in his labours."

The passage occurs in a brochure in which tribute is paid to the famous translator of the Talmud Babli by a large number of eminent Christian and Jewish scholars. The tributes and the names of those subscribing to it were read out at the reception which was given in London, England, in honour of his 70th birthday by the Lazarus Goldschmidt Reception Committee at the Royal Society, Burlington House, Piccadilly, W.

S. Landman, chairman of the Society for Promoting the Study of Hebrew Law, presided. Among the great riddles of the universe, said Mr. Landman, which the great minds of the world had been trying to solve for centuries, the riddle of the survival of the Jewish people was certainly to be counted. After the might of Rome had shattered into fragments the political independence of their nation, the Jews took with them into their exile their Torah. They kept the Torah, and the Torah kept them alive.

The record of the development of the Torah was in substance the Talmud. The Talmud was the great educational instrument which trained the Jewish mind. The principle laid down by the founders of the Talmud, "spread wide the numbers of your disciples,"

N. Y. Zionists Urge Roosevelt To Help Palestinian And Stateless Jews Organize Army

Declaring that those who make the policy of the United Nations must not forget "the right of little nations" to participate in the ultimate victory, Senator Claude Pepper of Florida appealed for the formation of a Palestine Jewish fighting force, at a mass meeting in Carnegie Hall which adopted a resolution approving this aim.

Dr. Stephen S. Wise presided over the meeting, which was under the auspices of the American Emergency Committee for Zionist Affairs, the Zionist Organization of America, Hadassah, Mizrachi, the Order of the Sons of Zion, the Zionist Labor Group, Young Judaea, Maccabi, Avukah, Junior Hadassah, Hahoulm, and the Hechaluts Group.

"Who, more than the Jews, deserve the honor of the battle's snare?" asked Senator Pepper. "Were they not singled out and persecuted most of all? Were they not made the victim of the murderous attack which those devilish forces hurled against the race of man? Were they not made the excuse for the unbridled assault upon the integrity of the human race which was hurled by these demoniacal forces?

"How, then, can the Jewish nation, the Jewish national home, be denied a chance to fight in the lines, be denied the honor of returning a few of the wicked blows which they have so patiently borne?"

Representative John E. Sheridan of Pennsylvania took issue with an editorial on the subject recently published in the New York Times. He declared "that editorial provoked every fair-thinking man, regardless of his race, faith or creed."

"Then, this editorial writer bases his opposition to a Jewish army on the British position that an Arab uprising might occur and disrupt the control of the Mediterranean," he said. "It is my sincere conviction that the umbrella of appeasement has been placed in the archives to gather dust. We once tried to appease by shipping oil and scrap iron which came back to deal death and destruction to American youth. Remember Pearl Harbor!

"Another objection raised is that it would create a Zionist state as one of the official aims of the United Nations now fighting the cause of democracy; that this purpose was proclaimed by many in the closing years of the Jewish [illegible]

A Hand Toward Self-Help

By Ethel Oatry, of Montreal, Executive Secretary, Child and Family Welfare Departments, Federation of Jewish Philanthropies

Mrs. B. was a widow with three children all under sixteen years of age. Her husband was a fur worker and although he earned a good living for her and the family he did not make enough to save anything. When he died there was no insurance, either, and the family was left destitute. Mrs. B., however, was considered a property owner having invested on a partnership basis with some relatives in a vacant lot. She had no income from this and very little equity due to arrears in taxes.

Mrs. B. managed alone as long as she could. When her resources were exhausted she applied to the Agency to help her out. Her rent was in arrears, she had a large grocery and milk bill.

The Agency assisted Mrs. B. in the payment of rent, food and fuel and then suggested to her that she apply for a Needy Mother's Pension. Due to the fact that she was considered a property owner, even though she derived no income from it, there was a delay of several months during which time the Family Welfare Department assisted her. Finally her allowance was granted. While she was receiving the full allowance of $30.94 per month with the additional few dollars she was able to earn as a cook, Mrs. B. managed to be self-supporting and did not need any assistance from the Family Welfare Department.

A year later, however, Mrs. B. was advised that she, along with all other recipients of Needy Mother's Allowance, according to the new regulations would have her allowance decreased to $20 a month. This made it impossible for Mrs. B. to manage on her own resources and she was again obliged to apply to the Family Welfare Department for assistance. By this time Mrs. B. was quite depressed and needed a lot of moral support. The Agency will maintain its contact with her as long as they can be of any assistance to her.

Official Suggests Straus As Nazi Captives' Keeper

A responsible official offered "the very pious thought" that Nathan Straus, who has just resigned as head of the United States Housing Administration, be made director of the internment of Nazi prisoners in the United States.

The official said that such Nazi's have been acquired and undoubtedly will be acquired and will be put behind barbed wire and "adequately taken care of." Bearing in mind that Mr. Straus is a Jew, the official said he thought it would be a right nice gesture to give Mr. Straus the job of caretaker.

It was indicated, however, that Mr. Straus may not be able to take the post.

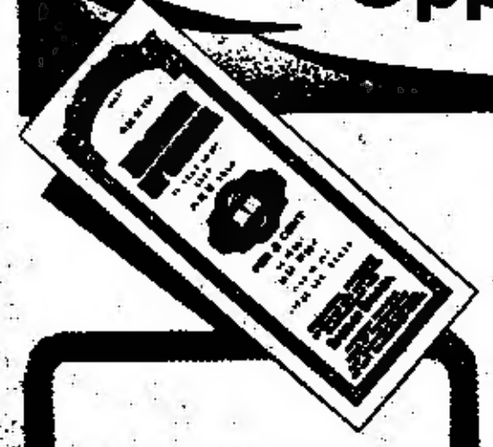
Buy Victory Bonds To Free The Oppressed



WE wage war not only to keep Canada free, but to liberate the enslaved peoples of Europe and Asia. Your relatives and friends in the old land look to you who are free to help speed Victory.

Canada will not let them down as long as she has the money to produce more shells, more planes, more ships. You can do your part by buying Victory Bonds, for through these purchases Canada can forge the armour, the bullets, the equipment to defeat evil Axis forces.

Canada does not ask your to give your money — only to lend it. Every dollar you invest will earn interest payable in cash every six months, at the rate of 3% per annum, and every dollar you invest will be paid back to you in full when due.

So help those who are praying for liberation. Buy Victory Bonds and help ensure for them freedom of home, of religion, of government.

Victory Bonds will be on sale February 16th. Arrange now to buy all you can.

What is a VICTORY BOND?

It's the Dominion of Canada's promise to repay when due every cent you lend the government. You can convert the Bonds into cash at any time, in case you should need the money.

Each Bond pays 3% interest per annum. Attached to each Bond are interest coupons. Twice a year you can take one of these to the nearest bank and get your interest money in cash.

You can get Victory Bonds in $50, $100, $500, $1,000 or $5,000 units. You can buy the Bonds on the instalment plan — only 10% in cash and the balance spread over several months, with the final payment August 15th, 1942.

Victory Bonds can be bought from the authorized salesman who calls on you or from any Bank or Trust Company, or from your local Victory Loan headquarters.

The sale of the new Victory Bonds starts February 16th. Make arrangements now to buy all you can.

Progressive Year For Savings Bank

Montreal C. & D. Report —Profits Steady

—Year Ended Dec. 31—

	1941	1940
Net Profit	$86,461	$301,552
Per Share	$19.42	$19.59

Financial statement of the Montreal City & District Savings Bank for 1941, presented to shareholders at the annual meeting here showed the usual strong balance sheet position, with readily available assets equal to 107 per cent of all liabilities to the public. Profits for the year were little changed from 1940's being sufficient to cover the 12 per cent dividend and 2 per cent bonus which in the aggregate required $280,000, by a margin of $106,461. Net profit was equal to $19.42 per share against $19.59 for 1940. After dividends, charity donations at $10,650, and after transferring $300,000 to general reserves, bringing these to $3,300,000, earned surplus is carried forward at 149,473.

Balance sheet shows quick assets of $70,208,941 as compared with $65,767,704 in liabilities to the public. Cash at $8,188,655 compares with $7,792,000; holdings of Dominion and Provincial government bonds at $38,010,000 compares with $36,157,000. Holdings of municipals are somewhat lower, while holdings of utility bonds remain steady. Call and short loans have declined to $2,897,000 from $3,260,000. Interest-bearing deposits have risen from $61,950,000 to $63,038,000, while non-interest-bearing deposits are slightly higher at $1,401,000.

In addressing shareholders, prior to moving the adoption of the annual report, Rt. Hon. Raoul Dandurand, president, dwelt at some length on the necessity of preparing now for the post-war problems of employment that will result from demobilization of 500,000 men and the eventual release of 700,000 workers from war industries.

"It is the duty of both the State and the heads of industry," he said, "to get together and work out ways and means of transforming war industries into peacetime industries and this, not only with the object of supplying the demands of our domestic market, but also to make available to the outside world the commodities Canada will then be in a position to dispose of advantageously, thanks to its inexhaustible natural resources.

Committees of experts are at work, in London, Washington and Ottawa, studying this alarming post-war period problem which will require the joint collaboration of all countries. It must also be the individual task of the citizens of all nations who should be interested in the question of their own survival, to share in these studies and, with this end in view, I appeal directly to our entire population.

"It is inevitable that the suspension of hostilities will bring in its wake a sudden halt in the activities of our industries and other establishments. A period of transition, between the end of the war and the setting-up of a new order, is bound to happen and one must never lose sight of the temporary unemployment which may occur in consequence."

CONFIDENCE... AND Victory!

WITH grim but quiet determination the people of Canada and the United States carry in their minds and hearts the conviction of complete and final Victory over the enemies of freedom.

This will to win and to hold fast to their chosen way of life is reflected by nearly seventy million people throughout these two countries who continue to maintain their life assurance because they know it is the best means of ensuring future economic security for themselves and their families. Their confidence serves a dual purpose, for their savings have also made possible the great investments of the life companies in the Victory and National Defence loans of our North American democracies.

New World Club Visits Einstein

MEMBERS ARE REFUGEE PROFESSIONALS

Dr. Albert Einstein talked informally to 150 European refugees who, as members of the New World Club of New York, traveled to Princeton to meet the noted scientist and make a tour of Princeton's educational institutions.

He met the visitors in Miller Chapel of the Princeton Theological Seminary, expressing his appreciation at seeing so many of his former fellow-countrymen and welcoming them to Princeton. His talk was followed by questions from the floor on subjects ranging from his theory of relativity to the war.

The New World Club, which has its headquarters at 67 West Forty-fourth Street, is made up chiefly of refugee teachers, doctors and lawyers and their families.

Popular Song Lyricist Dies

Irving Kahal, one of the best known coin-phonograph and popular dance-band song lyricists, who wrote such hits as "The Night Is Young and You're So Beautiful" and "Moonlight Saving Time," died at Mount Sinai Hospital, Fifth Avenue and 100th Street, New York, of uraemic poisoning after an illness of two years. He was thirty-nine years old, and lived at 146 Central Park West.

When Mr Kahal completed writing the lyrics for Ed Wynne's last show, "Boys And Girls Together," he was too ill to continue work. He did not write another song until two weeks ago, when he said that he was feeling much better and overflowing with ideas. He began writing several songs with a patriotic theme. His last one was written just before he entered the hospital, and was entitled "A Horse and Buggy and Freedom," with music written by Sammy Stept, the lyrics read:

"Just keep your limousines, we don't need 'em,
And though the country lanes may be far,
Give me a horse and buggy and freedom
And I can do without a car.
[illegible] gypsy are quickly
[illegible] the urge is really be free,
A Yankee girl and gingham and cotton
Is still a lovely sight to see.

The rights we fight each day for
We must learn to pay for.
We'll have to give up many things,
You'll be surprised how little you need 'em,
And though at first you'll find it may hurt,
Give me a horse and buggy and freedom
And Uncle Sam can have my shirt."

Mr. Kahal was born in Houtzdale, Pa. He came to New York when a boy and attended public schools and high schools in Manhattan. He then joined road shows and was a singer in Gus Edwards Minstrels. He began song-writing when he was eighteen.

In 1925 he met Sammy Fain in the late Fred Fisher's office. They decided to collaborate on a song. They called it "Nobody Knows What a Red Head Man Can Do," and it was a hit. From then on Mr. Kahal was a popular song writer. In 1927 he went to Hollywood to work for Warner Brothers, writing songs for singers who appeared in motion pictures.

He wrote for several musical comedies, including "Right This Way" and "Everybody's Welcome." He also arranged shows for night clubs. It was for Billy Rose's show at the Texas Centennial at Fort Worth in 1936 that he wrote the popular "The Night Is Young and You're So Beautiful."

Other songs he wrote were: "By a Waterfall," "I Can Dream, Can't I," "Let a Smile Be Your Umbrella on a Rainy Day" and "Left My Sugar Standing in the Rain."

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Alice Kahal; a daughter, Miss Ethel Kahal; his father, Morris Kahal; a sister, Mrs. Pauline Ward, and two brothers, Robert and Saul Kahal, all of New York.

The only two Jewish newspapers in Uruguay, published for a number of years, were ordered to cease publishing by police authorities under the new press regulations. Simultaneously, it was announced, that no Yiddish newspapers from abroad will be allowed into Uruguay. The Uruguayan government had previously introduced a bill forbidding the publication of newspapers in foreign or "exotic languages which are difficult to control." It provided that a newspaper could not be published except in a language taught in local high schools, unless a Spanish translation of all material was furnished.

to live or starve to death behind barbed wire enclosing the Jewish quarter there.

At every gate of this reservation stand steel-helmeted German soldiers with fixed bayonets. If a non-Jew enters this quarter of black despair, as sometimes one may do with the permission of the Germans for sight-seeing, he will be accompanied by a German who sees to it that he does not contravene a strict ban against speaking of any of the inhabitants.

The inhabitants of the ghetto obtain the same bread ration as that granted to the Poles, but deaths from starvation are said to be particularly frequent in the Warsaw ghetto.

Incidentally, the Germans are reportedly making no effort to rebuild bomb-wrecked Warsaw, so that the city may never again serve as a center of Polish independence. The Nazis, instead, are concentrating their attention on Cracow, which is much closer to Reich territory.

Although the Russian Army is daily cutting more slices from the territory under the control of Dr. Rosenberg and his ministry, deportations of Jews from the Reich eastward are proceeding steadily and "according to plan."

Most of the larger cities in South and Southwest Germany, for instance Frankfort on the Main, may be said to have already been evacuated by their Jews.

Not all of them have gone to Litzmannstadt, which is in the center of the new Warthegau and which the Germans have designated as the new Jewish city, where some 10,000 Jews from Belgium are already at forced labor making uniforms for the German Army.

Some have been moved to Berlin, for the Nazi plan apparently is to concentrate the Jews so that they can be kept under immediate control for such measures as may be decided upon later.

Reports of new food restrictions for Jews and Poles throughout the Reich have been received at Stockholm from Berlin. Jews and Poles are forbidden to buy flour, so-called white bread and pastry. Places that sell those products must display posters calling attention to the prohibition.

Other reports are that German authorities have withdrawn cards for shaving soap held by Jews and have [illegible] them to visit barber shops.

The Nazis have transferred to the Jewish ghetto in Lwow (Lemberg) a number of Jewish communities from neighbouring towns. In order to accommodate the new arrivals in the already congested ghetto, five streets are to be added to the Jewish area. The Nazis themselves admit the high mortality figures in Lwow. Particularly significant is the very high death rate among the male population.

A Geneva message says that typhus has broken out in the Lwow ghetto and that the mortality among the Jews is growing daily. At the same time the lack of medicaments and the mobilization of many Jewish doctors and chemists for duties at German military hospitals are adding to the difficulties of combating the epidemic among the half-starved Jews in this congested ghetto area.

Typhus outbreaks are also reported from Eastern Galicia, where many Soviet prisoners are interned, and from the concentration camp near Sarod, in Slovakia, to which Jews from Bratislava and other towns were recently deported.

There are now believed to be well over 1,000,000 Jews confined to the ghettoes of Poland. Warsaw has 530,000, Lodz 150,000, Lwow 120,000, Bialystok 80,000, Wilno 60,000, Otwock 40,000, Lublin 40,000, Czenstochowa 20,000, Kielce 20,000, Cracow 11,000, and Sosnitz 5,000.

The Governor-General, Frank, has decreed the death penalty for Jews leaving Cracow ghetto without permission, and for non-Jews harbouring Jews who have escaped from the ghetto.

Another decree forbids Jews, even outside the ghettoes, to change their places of domicile without permission of the authorities. If a Jew wishes to move from his town or village to settle elsewhere, he must apply to the Gestapo authorities for a permit. At the same time, Jews have been forbidden to enter the Alexander, Grice, Sochatchow, and Pabianice districts, or the eastern part of the Warsaw district. Following an order expelling all Jews from Lowicz, Sochatchow, and Blonie, the local Nazi authorities issued a regulation making non-Jews liable to three months' imprisonment if they allow a Jew to stay even one night in their homes.

The Nazi authorities installed electrified wires round the walls of the Jewish ghettoes in Warsaw, Lublin, and other places. A warning was issued that all non-Jews must keep at least a distance of 50 metres from the ghetto walls, and that offenders are liable to be fired on at sight.

This, the Nazis think, will put an end to ghetto-escapes and to the growing practice of Poles of throwing food over the walls to the starving Jews as a mark of sympathy and as a demonstration against the Nazi regime. Nevertheless, it is reported that despite the strict warnings repeatedly issued by the Nazis, many Poles, especially women, continue to practise their acts of mercy in sending food to the ghettoes whenever suitable opportunities present themselves.

One warning to Poles not to give any assistance to Jews states that a number of Jews have succeeded, with the help of the Poles, in entering parts of the country from which they are banned, and alleges that they have in this way spread typhus among the inhabitants.

ted the Jewish people to see in the human mind the greatest achievement of creation. The respect for learning—pure learning—and the comparative disregard of wealth social status, or family influence, had contributed greatly to the spread of learning for its own sake, which was the mark of true scholarship in every field.

It was from this viewpoint that Dr. Goldschmidt embarked on his colossal task some 45 years ago.

Chief Rabbi said he was among those who years ago welcomed the news of this bold venture despite attacks made on the undertaking. Nevertheless, when in 1897 he received the first instalment, he never for one moment believed that Goldschmidt would get beyond Shabbath. But 40 years later, in 1935, Lazarus Goldschmidt had accomplished what no man or group of men had ever done before. The secret of his success was will-power.

The Rev. Professor S. H. Hooke (King's College, University of London) said he hoped Dr. Goldschmidt would regard him as the voice unanimously expressing on behalf of English scholarship their admiration and wonderment at the achievement to which his life had been devoted. All English scholars regarded his translation as a tour de force. It was a unique masterpiece in that most difficult art of translating from one tongue into another.

Leon Simon, who spoke in Hebrew, said it was fitting that such a gathering of scholars should pay tribute to Dr. Goldschmidt, for it was only such teachers who could appraise at its true value and do justice to Dr. Goldschmidt's great work.

In his reply, Dr. Goldschmidt, after uttering his thanks for the honour done him, said for him the Talmud was a precious product of the human mind, produced on Jewish soil, tended by Jewish scholars, and preserved by the Jewish spirit. What had led him to work on it was not pious reverence for a literary document hedged round with divinity, nor was it a desire to defend the Jewish religion. He was animated solely by the spirit of scientific research, accompanied perhaps by an ambition to achieve distinction. In that spirit, and under its guidance he began, continued and finished his work. He could not see why the patient research which had been devoted to the fragmentary inscriptions of peoples long since dead should be withheld from the living and growing literature of a people which had endured through the ages.

But something else happened of which he had never thought, which formed no part of his purpose. The translation became a weapon in the fight against the enemies of the Jews; it also became a Tree of Life for Judaism in Central Europe.

Those who still remembered the forms of anti-Semitism in Germany in the last decade of the nineteenth century would know to what calumnies and reproaches the Talmud was subjected, what insults the whole of Jewry had to endure with it and on account of it. Great was the anti-Semites' disillusionment when the first part of his translation appeared. The official organ of the anti-Semitic party, the Staatsbuergerzeitung, published a long article on "the Jewish forgery," alleging that the whole was a fabrication, and not at all the first edition of the Talmud! However, the outcry soon died away. The learned press published appreciative and eulogistic reviews, chiefly from non-Jewish pens. The mud-slinging at the Talmud ceased, nothing more was said about the "abominable" teaching of the text-book of the Jewish religion, and the political fight against the Jews had to take other directions.

Only after the months of the Jews and many others were compulsorily closed by a horde of criminals, so that no protest could any more be made against lies and calumnies, was a Streicher able to resume the mud-slinging.

Sun Life Shows Increases

Increases are shown by the Sun Life of Canada in all important items of the Seventy-first annual statement just released, including substantial gains in assurances in force, new policies and total assets which are nearly one billion dollars. With the new business showing a strong upward trend throughout the period under review, this leading Canadian Company once again demonstrates the significance of life assurance in national economy.

Arthur B. Wood, Sun Life President, in his annual review of the Company's operations gives particular emphasis to the functions of life assurance under war conditions. He declared that every available dollar of policyholders' premium savings, while performing its primary purpose of providing security for the individual and the family is also being applied, together with the investment income of the Company, to the purchase of government loans. The contribution of the life companies to the war effort has been most substantial and must be sustained for as long as is necessary, not only during the war, but afterwards in the time of reconstruction. The Sun Life now has upwards of 215 millions in Government Bonds of the Allied Countries, made up of $83,367,250 of Canadian Government and Government Guaranteed Bonds, $53,215,946 of United States Government Bonds, $47,208,809 of British Governments, $32,042,926 of Government Bonds of other British Empire countries.

Arthur B. Wood, President of the Sun Life of Canada, in his annual review announces that every dollar available from premium and investment income will be used for the purchase of government bonds to aid in financing the war. The financial statement shows increases in all important items of the Sun Life business for the year; with assets nearly one billion dollars.

The purpose and efficiency of life assurance, Mr. Wood believes, become more evident to the public mind in times of national crisis. This is substantiated by the fact that during the twelve months covered by the Sun Life report, over 187 millions of new business was secured by the Company. This sum is an increase of more than 17 million dollars over last year, and brings the total amount of protection for all Sun Life policyholders to almost three billion dollars. By far the greater part of this business is in Canada, United States, Great Britain and British countries, while no less than 95% of the Company's total investments are in these countries. The total war claims since hostilities began two years ago amount to only 2.2% of total death claims. This compares most favourably with the death rate from accidents during peacetime when automobile fatalities alone accounted for about 4% of the total death claims and claims from all accidental causes were about 9% of the total. The mortality experience of the British business is particularly noteworthy, for, including all deaths among the armed forces, and among civilians due to air raids or other causes attributed to the war, it is substantially the same as the average death rate under the Company's entire business thus far during the war.

Other important figures appearing in the Sun Life's Annual Report are: Premium Income $112,300,000; Investment Income $36,300,000; Total Receipts from all sources $149,300,000; Payments to policyholders $88,300,000, including nearly $12,500,000 paid in dividends to policyholders; Total benefits paid since first policy issued, approximately $1,500,000,000; Over $2,500,000 was paid in taxes by the Company during the year; Surplus and contingency reserves $32,000,000.

The broad diversification of the assets which now stand at 985 million dollars is disclosed by the following classification showing the percentage of total assets under each heading. Government Bonds 25.8%, Municipal Bonds 5.3%, Industrial Bonds 5.0%, Railroad Bonds 2.8%, Public Utility Bonds 19.3%, Preferred and Guaranteed Stocks 1.4%, Common Stocks of Industrial and Financial Corporations 16.8%, Common Stocks of Public Utilities 9.4%, Mortgages 5.0%, Real Estate 2.2%, Policy Loans 8.2%, Cash 1.7%, Other Assets 3.1%.

Professor Glueck — The Union's Director

American organized Liberal Judaism has chosen a new director in the person of Professor Nelson Glueck, Rabbi, scholar and a man of personal charm. Dr. Glueck has won international fame as an archaeologist. His discoveries in Palestine have revolutionized the science of biblical study.

We welcome Dr. Glueck's appointment as the Union's director succeeding the late Rabbi Edward Israel. We knew Dr. Glueck throughout our student days at the Hebrew Union College. His warmth for all things Jewish he inherits from a classical Jewish home where Torah was ever revered and where men of Torah were ever held in esteem.

Enriched through his "diggings" in Palestine, enriched by an ever increasing understanding of Israel's past, Dr. Glueck will not have the opportunity to still widen his cherished interests in the faith and peoplehood of Israel. A sacred approach will Professor Glueck bring to the administration of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations. Because of his scholarly training he will no doubt attempt a synthesis of faith and activity that will indeed prove most fruitful in the cause of Jewish life in the democratic Americas.

Our congratulations and warmest of personal greeting to Dr. Glueck, friend and colleague, upon his appointment to the directorship of the Union. May this new challenging task yield him and American Jewry an abundant spiritual harvest. Chazak V'ematz!

The Ten Immortal Words

The past Sabbath in Synagogues throughout the world the traditional scripture lesson dealt with the "Asereth Ha-dibros"—The Decalogue. No religious document has exercised a greater influence on moral and social life than the Ten Commandments. In Judaism "the moral code" has ever been recognized as basic. The sages have pointed out that in "the revelation" the Divine Voice spoke in all tongues. All of nature was wrapped in breathless silence when God addressed himself to Israel and gave Israel the Torah. The ancient teachers regard the day of revelation equally as important as the day of creation. For on that day of Torah giving there occurred the birth hour of the religion of the spirit. Hence the revelation was the most remarkable event in the history of humanity.

Many moderns do not believe in the dramatic story of Sinai as related in scripture. They believe that the Sinaitic Code came not through a revelation from God but through experience. Man has lived and experienced and discovered through his record of experience a moral code which results in happiness. Israel, so moderns have professed, has shown a predisposition to moral leadership. Hence from the spiritual genius of the Jew has emerged these great moral truths. Despite the plea of moderns that these ten commandments are man-made, hosts of us choose the affirmation found in the authority of God's revelation. Perhaps the very moral chaos of our day is to be traced to the fact that the rationalists and materialists have dethroned God as the motivation for "imitate dei" and life has become demoralised, mechanized, and despiritualized.

But why waste time in debating the origin of the Decalogue? The fact is that the Ten Commandments stand amidst the ebb and flow of the ages. If science has taught us anything it is the recognition of law in the universe: and even as there exists physical law so equally there operates a moral law in the world. Break the moral law and evil consequences do follow. The wages of sin is death. In the realm of ethics as a man soweth so he reapeth. Morality teaches us that we are all tied up and dependent upon each other. One need only examine the pages of history and he soon becomes convinced that evil always descends upon the unrighteous nation or individual. There is "a power not ourselves that makes for righteousness."

To apprehend the Supreme Mind in the story of revelation we must come to know something of spiritual illumination. As a Jewish teacher I am ever thrilled by the everlasting covenant which God and Israel made at Sinai. Out of this covenant Israel has taken upon itself a mission as the spiritual lightbearer and keeper of the light for all mankind.

If only modern Jews would know the meaning of Israel's goal throughout history, then this burden of suffering that comes upon us in historical intervals would become easy. With the covenant at Sinai, everlasting life was planted in the soul of Israel. Israel thus has become an "Am Elom", an eternal people. Tyrants may come and attempt the destruction of the Jew. But the Jew holding on to the Torah has managed to stand by the grave of his traducers.

Our great Talmudic teachers tell the following charming story. When God gave the Torah on Sinai, at that moment there descended from the heavens Sefer Vesayot, a book and a sword. These were bound one against the other in combat. And a Heavenly Voice was heard to cry: choose one or the other! If you choose the "sefer", life will be yours; if you choose the sword, death will be yours. Israel chose the book, the Torah, the code of Sinai. To-day in a war between mind

"Sometimes when people censure me,
I tell them without rancor
That for what it cost me to be free,
I might have had an author."

Although most of Europe's Jews are not only deprived of every vestige of civil and political rights but also of the most elementary rights of human beings, it is the feeling of Dr. Raphael Mahler, Jewish historian, formerly of Vienna, that the history of Jewish emancipation is such a source of strong unshakeable faith in the Jewish future that it makes this present period take on the appearance of a recession in human and Jewish history which is only a temporary one. In the past two issues of the Review, this column condensed the collection of laws pertinent to the equality of Jews as citizens which Dr. Mahler made for the American Jewish Committee's Research Institute on Peace and Post-War Problems, up to "The Era Of 1830", and continues this week with what should be for readers at the finish a compact summary of the documentary presentation of the history of Jewish emancipation.

In France, the Equality of the Jewish Religion, 1831, was a law enacted by King Louis Philippe, which ordered that "ministers of the Israelite cult shall receive their salaries from the public treasury . . . a definite and permanent matter for ever." This completed the equality of the Jewish religion in the country.

In Great Britain, The Sheriff's Declaration Act, 1835, repealed the Acts that imposed "the Necessity of receiving the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper as a Qualification to certain Offices", thus relieving sheriffs of cities from the usual declaration. This was done to accommodate David Salomons who, in 1835, was elected sheriff of the county of London. His right to hold office was disputed because he refused to make the declaration which included a Christian oath. The Parliamentary Elections Act, 1835, removed the necessity of electors taking oaths and made it possible for Jews to participate in elections. The Jewish Disabilities Removal Act, 1845, made all municipal offices open to Jews without the "Christian Oath" and upon a declaration not "to injure or weaken the Protestant Church, as it is by Law established in England . . . " Bills which had been introduced time and again in Parliament since 1830 in favor of complete civil rights for Jews were at first defeated by the Tories in the House of Commons and later by the House of Lords, despite unanimous resolutions by the Lower House in their favor.

In Greece, the International Guarantees of Religious Equality, 1830, a protocol of the Conference of London, granted that "all subjects of the new State . . . be treated on a footing of perfect equality, without regard to difference of creed in all their relations, religious, civil or political." This made the Jews of Greece the first to be emancipated in the Balkans.

In the United States of America, The Maryland Act, 1824, enacted that "every citizen of this state professing the Jewish religion . . . make and subscribe a declaration of his beliefs in a future state of rewards and punishments, in the stead of the declaration now required . . . " This Act removed the last vestiges of Jewish disabilities in the state.

In Jamaica, The Emancipation Act, 1830, "repealed, annulled, and made void" the necessity for taking the Christian Oath" in order to vote or hold office. It said in part: "And whereas doubts have been entertained whether persons professing the Jewish religion are entitled to exercise and enjoy the same rights, privileges, immunities, and advantages to which his Majesty's other natural-born subjects are entitled within this Island: And whereas such doubts ought no longer to exist; be it enacted . . . that persons professing the Jewish religion are entitled to exercise and enjoy the same rights, privileges, immunities, and advantages to which his Majesty's other natural-born subjects are entitled within this Island . . . " The next year, 1831, the Jews were expressly freed from having to take the "Christian Oath."

In Canada, the Quebec Emancipation Act, 1823, accorded to Jews full rights and privileges. Quebec was the sole province where Jews resided at the time, but their right to full citizenship was never questioned in the other provinces. The civil and political rights of Jews in Canada had been taken for granted until, in 1808, Ezekiel Hart, who had been elected to the Assembly of Lower Canada, was barred from taking his seat by the French majority, in spite of the fact that Jews had held high civil and military offices. The ostensible motive was the "Christian Oath", but his opponents were landowners who were hostile toward English merchants as well as toward Jews who supported the government. The Emancipation Act which was unanimously approved by the Assembly was an outcome of the struggle for political reform being waged in England and Canada.

The revolutionary upheaval of 1848-1849 Dr. Mahler calls "The Spring of Nations." The revolution which broke out in Paris in February, 1848, was a signal of revolutionary uprising throughout Europe, and the struggle for democracy and national freedom was much more radical than the revolutions of 1830 which were the first attempt to break up the Metternich system of absolutism.

In Austria, under pressure of the revolution, The (Pillersdorf) Constitution, 1848, included the principle of equal rights, irrespective of religion. The Constitutional Charter, 1849, granted "full freedom of creed . . . the enjoyment of civil and political rights."

In Germany the Constitutional Charter of Prussia, 1848, made "All Prussians equal before the law" with "public offices . . . equally accessible to all thereto qualified", and guaranteed freedom of religion and civil and political rights. Religious Equality in the Reich, 1848, granted the same sort of law and declared that "No state church shall exist henceforth."

In Italy, Civil Rights in Sardinia, 1848, granted to Israelites of the Kingdom of Sardinia, the nucleus of the united Italy of the future, "all civil rights and the capacity to obtain academic degrees." This decree of King Carlo Alberto was proposed by a notable report to His Majesty by Vicensi Ricci which said in part: "Only one class of the inhabitants of the Kingdom, the Israelite population, remains under the burden of harsh exclusions from the benefits of civil society. Such a state of affairs appears to be not only inequitable and contrary to present civilization, but is also harmful not only to the Israelites but also to the general interests of the State. Excluded from the right to possess immovable goods, from academic degrees of any profession, and from unrestricted residence in the cities, they necessarily have to limit themselves to commercial occupations and to employ a large part of their funds in loans, often corrupted in usury, and easily exportable outside the State. Legal inferiority also maintains true moral degradation among many of them. Restored, on the contrary, to parity in rights with all the other inhabitants of the Kingdom, they will become useful citizens by their ingenuity and their wealth, which, when applied to the acquisition of real estate and in industrial associations, will also make them share in the burdens and advantages so completely identifiable with the common prosperity of the country." A few months later, to full civil rights were added the civil and political equality of all religions by Complete Religious Equality in Sardinia, 1848. In the same year, Jewish emancipation was announced by the revolutionaries in Rome.

In Denmark the Constitution, 1849, recognized the equality of citizens of all creeds.

Next week this column will complete the history of Jewish emancipation as revealed through the documents collected by Dr. Mahler, the major lesson of which is that the fate of the Jewish people is eternally bound up with the progress of humanity.

The Agitation For A Jewish Army

The Christian Century says:

Opposition in these columns to the proposal to form a Jewish army may be attributed to what we have been told is our anti-Zionist bias. Yet at the risk of further misunderstanding we cannot refrain from saying that, in our judgment, all proposals of this nature are unwise and in the long run will do world Jewry far more harm than good.

The schemes for a Jewish army fall into two classes. One group of proposals favors the formation of Jewish divisions in Palestine, to fight there under British orders but under a Jewish flag and Jewish commanders. (Many Palestinian Jews are already serving as individuals in the British forces in the Middle East; official recognition has been given their gallantry.) Of course the immediate objection to the formation of such a Jewish army is that no move could be better calculated to toss the whole Islamic world into Hitler's lap and thus to threaten Britain with the loss of the Near and Middle East.

The second class of proposals would have a Jewish army formed somewhere in England or the United States, composed of refugees and such American and British Jews as might obtain the permission of their governments to enlist. But the objection in this case is that the formation of such an army would dramatize and make official the segregation of the Jew. It might, as claimed, increase his sense of separate nationality. It would certainly increase his sense of loneliness.

Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, is on his way to the United States, reportedly to increase the pressure on President Roosevelt and the American government to endorse one of the other of these plans for a Jewish army. Those who see the mission of Israel as a spiritual mission will hope that he will not succeed.

I wonder if that some is not the publisher of The New York Times. Since when does a small minority determine the principles of the rest, notwithstanding a powerful newspaper to the contrary. My interpretation of the Roosevelt-Churchill Charter is not only that the Jews and other national minorities be permitted to live peacefully and happily in every nation, and to enjoy full rights of other citizens, but also to defend the little tracts of land people call their homelands."

Dr. Wise said that "the elementary dictates of Jewish self-respect" were the source of the demand for a Jewish military force under British command. He said that the young Jews of Palestine are "begging Britain to be permitted to serve as Jews, under British command, to serve in Palestine or wherever Britain and the United Nations may choose to use them in defense of democracy and of every cause for which the United Nations stand."

David Ben Gurion, chairman of the executive committee of the Jewish Agency for Palestine; Dr. Nahum Goldmann, a member of the executive committee of that organization, and Dr. Frank Kingdon, president of the Union for Democratic Action, were among other speakers who supported the plea.

The resolution adopted by the meeting requested President Roosevelt "to use his good offices in conformity with the spirit and traditions of this country to help secure for the Jews of Palestine and for stateless Jews legally free to join with them the right to organize a Jewish fighting force under British command or the Allied command of the United Nations."

The Free French will finance Palestine's Alliance Israelite schools, it was announced by French Commissioner [illegible], Professor Rene Cassin, [illegible] in Jerusalem that the Free French would not recognize any of Vichy's anti-Semitic legislation.

COMMENTARIES

and brute force, Israel remains the dramatic symbol of the victory of the spirit and the power of the spirit in the world.

Suggested Reading For Adolf Hitler

"Whom hast thou taunted and blasphemed?
And against whom has thou exalted thy voice?
Yea, thou has lifted up thine eyes on high,
Even against the Holy One of Israel!
By thy messengers thou has taunted the Lord,
And hast said: "With the multitude of my chariots
Am I come up to the height of the mountains,
To the innermost parts of Lebanon;
And I have cut down the tall cedars thereof,
And the choice cypresses thereof;
And I have entered into his farthest lodge,
I have digged and drunk
Strange waters,
And with the sole of my feet have I dried up
All the rivers of Egypt.'

But I know thy sitting down, and thy going out, and thy coming in,
And thy raging against Me.
Because of thy raging against Me,
And for that thy tumult is come up into Mine ears,
Therefore will I put My hook in thy nose,
And My bridle in thy lips,
And I will turn thee back by the way
By which thou camest." II Kings 19: 22-29.
